Jimson Weed Seed Fatal to Infant, Autopsy Reveals

Sanford in Report Says
Seed Resembles That of Mustard Plant; Is Brown
in Color

Taken to Hospital

Boy's Condition Resembles
Belladonna Poisoning,
Official Says

Last week there occurred in Kingston the tragic, untimely death of a 27-month-old boy from poisoning caused by swallowing the seed of the Jimson weed, it was announced at the health department today.

An autopsy disclosed that there were over 200 seeds of the weed in the intestinal tract of the child, who lived but a few hours after swallowing the seed.

Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, in discussing the death of the child, whose name was not made public, said that the little boy had been accustomed to playing either alone or with other children in his own or neighboring back yards. In these yards, he said, there were many plants, bushes and common weeds growing, among them being a quantity of Jimson weed, which is also known as Jamestown weed, thorn apple and stink weed.

The seed of the Jimson weed resembles mustard seed in size and is dark brown in color. The poisonous properties contained in the seeds of the Jimson weed are Atropine and Scopolamine.

The child when brought to the hospital had all the appearance of suffering from belladonna poisoning.

"Many children," said Dr. Sanford, "have the habit of putting things, which they pick up, into their mouths, and it so happened that this child, while playing with the seeds of the Jimson weed, which are found in large numbers inside a thorny burr, put them into his mouth and swallowed them. This resulted fatally in a few hours."

"There are many other plants and weeds," he said, "growing in his locality that are poisonous when any part of them is taken internally. Among these are: Pokeweed (having purple berries), lobelia, fanny, poison hemlock or poison parsley."

"The only purpose of this warning," said the health officer, "is to call to the attention of parents the disastrous results that may occur when a child puts anything which he finds into his mouth. Children should be broken of this habit and also nothing of a poisonous nature should be left where children may obtain it."

Prisoners Keep Dog
Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—Sing Sing convicts who kept a dog hidden in the prison for nearly a year in violation of rules will get to keep their pet, the dog, Stogie, 18 months old, entered visiting delegates at the American Prison Association yesterday with his tricks. Warden Lewis E. Lawes, who gave the convicts permission to retain Stogie, a mixture of chow and Scotch terrier, did not disclose how they had managed to conceal the dog so long from prison officials.

Countess 'Babs' and New Love?

Reports published in New York said Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, (above) the former Barbara Hutton, dime-store heiress, was returning to this country on the Conte di Savoia to divorce her Danish count and regain her American citizenship by marrying Robert Sweeney, 28, (right) noted amateur golfer. Babs, the Count and Sweeney all were reported on the same boat.

Halleck Says FDR Violates Charter

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Rep. Halleck (R., Ind.) contended today that President Roosevelt had violated the Constitution by ordering the war and navy departments to incur budgetary deficits in expenditures for housing, hospitalization and the reconditioning of obsolete vessels.

In an address prepared for the Washington Political Study Club, he declared:

"Control of the purse strings is vested by the Constitution in the Congress alone. Such control constitutes the basic guarantee of our liberty."

The Indiana Republican also termed the President's action in placing Lt. Col. Philip Fleming in charge of the wage-hour administration "dictatorial" and an "evasion of the law."

Senate Leadership Considers Curbing Neutrality Debate

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Senate leadership considered today a move to limit debate and thus assure a vote on the neutrality revision bill late next week.

The restriction probably will be put to a test Monday after the three-week-old general floor debate ends and balloting on amendments begins.

Unanimous consent is required to invoke a limitation. Senators Clark (D., Mo.) and Nye (R., N. D.), opponents of the administration's proposal to repeal the arms embargo, have opposed such a move in the past, but the whole opposition group intended to confer during the day to decide what attitude it would take if a curtailment motion were made. Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, indicated he would not object to a moderate limitation, as did some other Republican opponents of embargo repeal.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, said he would rather get by without a debate limitation but that "we might be able to work out an agreement."

Senator Reynolds (D., N. C.) wanted the floor today for a long speech. He was expected to be the 37th of the 96 senators to take a hand in the debate. Clark and Nye and Senators Murray (D., Mont.) and Stewart (D., Tenn.) also planned brief addresses.

Legion Will Hold Halloween Event For City Children

Parade and Party Listed for Auditorium; Also to Reorganize Its Band for Boys

Halloween will be observed appropriately by the children of Kingston this year with a parade and party under the auspices of Kingston Post of the American Legion and the city's recreation department, it was announced at the Legion meeting Friday evening.

The Legion's part in the festivities will be in arranging the parade of the children through the streets to the municipal auditorium where the party will be staged under the direction of the city's recreation department.

This annual party has always proved a great success and plans for the parade will be similar to that of last year, when the children residing downtown marched from the lower section of the city up Broadway to the auditorium, and the uptown children marched down Broadway to the auditorium. Part of the parade will be headed by the Legion Drum Corps. Last year the Port Ewen Fire Department Drum Corps participated, and they will be invited to play a similar role this year.

Reorganization of the American Legion sponsored band for boys is now under way. It was announced at the meeting the membership in the band is open to all boys of 12 years of age and over who are now studying music and playing instruments. Membership in the band will involve no expense to the boys.

It is planned to hold the first rehearsal on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock with Sal Cast, well known musical director, in charge. Mr. Cast directs the Kingston Concert Band and also plays first trumpet in the Albany Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon a meeting of the Third District American Legion will be held in the rooms of the local Post with Charles Parker, the new third district commander, presiding. The district comprises the counties of Ulster, Columbia, Greene, Sullivan, Rensselaer, Albany and Schoharie.

At the morning assembly of the Myron J. Michael School on Friday, November 10, the annual presentation will be made of the history award given by Charles H. de la Vergne in memory of his son, Louis D. de la Vergne.

Community Music Discussion Is Held At YMCA Parley of Interested Group

Representatives of musically minded people of Kingston met Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. to discuss the possibilities of music being added to the activities of the department of recreation. The meeting was conducted by Siebolt Firezweyck, musical specialist of the National Recreation Association and Sidney Lutzn, director of the city department of recreation.

Plans to establish a community choral club and to add music to the recreation activities were made after all sides of the question were discussed and explained. There was some feeling toward the establishment of a community orchestra but it was generally felt that it would come after the choral group was established.

Sea Voyagers Relate Tales of Hardships

At Least 67 Persons Lose Lives in Sinking of Two British Ships
by U-Boats

Bordeaux, France, Oct. 21 (AP)—At least 67 persons lost their lives in the sinking of two British steamers in the Atlantic Tuesday, authorities estimated today as they checked the stories of some 300 survivors landed here last night by a rescue ship.

Officials said that 61 apparently had gone down with the York-shire and six or seven with the City of Mandalay. The two vessels were sunk by a submarine within a half hour about 500 miles off the Spanish coast.

Tales of hardship and terror were told by the survivors, many of whom were taken to hospitals suffering severely from exposure. All those rescued were English or East Indians en route to England.

Long lines of ambulances and a corps of nurses were waiting on the dock when the American freighter Independence Hall, commanded by Captain D. J. McKen-zie, reached port. Scores of the survivors were carried off the rescue ship on stretchers.

Survivors said the York-shire and the City of Mandalay were in a convoy of 19 other vessels under the guard of British warships, but became separated from the convoy one day out from Gibraltar.

The 10,000-ton York-shire was the first to go down, torpedoed, passengers said, by a German submarine. The City of Mandalay was struck a short time later.

The westbound Independence Hall answered SOS calls from the two vessels.

The Mandalay, first to be reached, was breaking in two when the Independence Hall came in sight. Two of the vessel's lifeboats, heavily loaded, were awash. Scores of other passengers were floating in the sea in lifebelts.

Because of the heavy seas more than two hours was required to complete the rescue work. Tons of oil were spread on the water.

Some of the 60 passengers aboard the Independence Hall said that while the survivors of the City of Mandalay were being picked up a submarine suddenly came to the surface, causing those already aboard the rescue ship to scream with terror.

U. S. Liner Harding in Port; One Passenger,

Scalp in Storm

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Twenty-six persons were removed on stretchers from the United States liner President Harding today when the storm-battered vessel arrived after one of the most tempestuous and dramatic voyages in modern maritime annals.

Eyes were blackened, bones fractured and bodies bruised by tumbling furniture and heaving decks when the 13,869-ton liner was caught by a howling hurricane after rescuing the crew of the torpedoed British freighter Heronspool.

Altogether, 73 passengers and crew members were injured in the storm, but all except the 26 most seriously hurt were able to walk by the time the ship docked.

Ambulances Ready

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—The United States liner President Harding arrived today after ploughing through a North Atlantic hurricane which seriously injured several persons and left scores of passengers and crew members nursing fractures and bruises.

There were 598 passengers aboard. Three fleets of ambulances waited at the dock to remove the victims of the storm, which hit the ship some 800 miles east of Boston Tuesday night.

As the ship pulled into its dock, numerous passengers with bandaged arms and heads could be seen at the rail.

Although the radio operator reported receiving "hundreds" of anxious messages from relatives and friends ashore, there was a relatively small crowd gathered in the early morning hour at the dock.

Woman Is Scalped

One of the most seriously injured passengers was Miss Alvarez Cabal, 43, a Spanish subject, who was virtually scalped. Her head was split open, also. She was hurried immediately to a hospital.

Another woman passenger, Mrs. Eileen Thurston, 72, of the British Barbadoes, suffered severe head injuries, severe shock, arm and leg fractures and heart strain. She was taken to the Jersey City Medical Center.

Three Persons Are Held As Grasso's Cash and Securities Are Missing

Ruby Grill Operator's Story Causes
Arrest of Goldie Lane; Ellen
Ryan, Arthur Elting; Says
Strong Box Is Stolen

Pasquale Grasso, 57-year-old Ruby grill operator, is minus his treasure chest—money, stocks, bank book and all—and two Kingston waitresses and a salesman are in the Ulster county jail as the result.

The women are Ellen Ryan, 19, of 342 Broadway and Goldie Lane, 31, of 192 Ten Broeck avenue. They are charged with grand larceny, first degree.

Arthur Elting, 24, of Van Buren street, is the man involved and he is charged with receiving?

stolen property.

The strong box, allegedly stolen by the women from Grasso, contained $250 in cash, 100 shares of Borden stock, 50 shares of Irving Trust Co. stock, a bank book on the Ulster County Savings Institution, a ring and a watch, state police said.

According to Grasso's story to District Attorney Cleon B. Murray yesterday, he missed his "strong box" from the dresser in his bedroom, and surmised that Ellen Ryan, who had been to his grill early last Tuesday morning, might know about it.

After listening to Grasso's report on the missing treasure chest, District Attorney Murray called in the state police, Sergeant James Cunningham and Trooper Walter Keefe of Saugerties, in whose territory Grasso operates his grill.

Grasso's Story

This is the story Grasso told Sergeant Cunningham:

On Tuesday morning, October 17, he was awakened by pebbles thrown against his bedroom window.

Soviet Newspaper Asserts Nation Thwarted Similar Turkish Pact to Favor Germany

Allies Are Active

France and Britain Begin
Move for Cooperation
With Turks

(By The Associated Press)

Soviet Russia, unsuccessful negotiator with Turkey, broke her silence today on the Ankara pact with a declaration in the government newspaper that Britain and France "drew Turkey into the orbit of war."

The newspaper Izvestia asserted Russia herself had thwarted alleged plans to drive a wedge between the German-Russian partnership by failing to negotiate a parallel pact with Turkey.

It warned that Turkey "assumed such a responsibility which cannot but tell upon her policy in the very near future."

The three pact partners meanwhile lost no time in consolidating their new formal relationship.

Extensive Plans

Extensive plans for military cooperation in event that the obligations under the pact come into operation were completed in conferences in which Gen. Maxime Weygand represented France and Lieut.-Gen. Archibald P. Wavell represented Britain.

Gen. Weygand is commander-in-chief of French forces in the eastern Mediterranean; Lieut.-Gen. Wavell is Britain's middle east commander.

The intimation—and it was no more than that—was based on the fact that Izvestia, Soviet Russian government newspaper in Moscow, said Russia had no reason to regret Turkey's action in signing a mutual assistance pact with Great Britain and France.

Izvestia's editorial will be republished by the entire German press today or tomorrow.

Commentators pointed out that Russia, through her history had resisted British attempts to control the Dardanelles, strategic gateway to the Black Sea.

War preparations continued in the belligerent nations.

A German announcement declared to be without basis any idea that the failure of German troops to cross into France in driving back the Polus at the beginning of the week represented a gesture toward peace.

"England and France have rejected the fuhrer's outstretched hand," DNB, official German news agency said. "They threw down the gauntlet and Germany picked it up."

The German army high command at the same time acknowledged that French soldiers remained in German soil in possession of two heights west of Saarbrücken.

In Great Britain approximately 250,000 men between the ages of 20 and 22 were registering for possible military service while men already under arms continued across the channel to France.

French said an average of three British transports a night was arriving to swell the allied land forces.

Front Is Quiet

Meanwhile, only minor activity was noted on the western front. Premier Daladier conferred on economic problems for three hours with 10 of his ministers.

David Lloyd George, who headed the British government in the World War, re-emphasized his advocacy of a conference to attempt a world settlement.

Two officers taken prisoner when the Clement was sunk September 30, off Brazil, reached the Cape Verde Islands, according to a Liverpool announcement.

No details were given and the identity of the mysterious raider which sank the Clement remained to be determined.

Wants Arms Ban

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover has appealed anew for a ban on the sale to belligerents of American-made war weapons adapted for use against civilian populations. Hoover told a nation-wide radio audience last night the time had come for America to take a clear and explicit stand on war against civilians and added: "Whatever else may be done about the embargo, America should not sell bombing planes, their bombs, poison gas or submarines."

Saugerties Named On Crossing List

Public Service Report Says
Ulster Avenue Grade Is on Program for '40

The Ulster avenue crossing of Saugerties was included among those listed by the Public Service Commission for elimination in 1940, it was announced today.

The estimated cost of eliminating the crossings suggested at this time is $14,594,000.

Elopement, Wedding Bells, Divorces, Arrest, Bankruptcy Stir Hollywood

Hollywood, Oct. 21 (AP)—An elopement, a possible marriage, three divorce actions, an immigration arrest and a petition for bankruptcy of a leading night club threw film colony gossip into high gear today.

The elopement was that of Pioneer Film Producer B. P. Schulberg, the man who discovered Clara Bow, Schulberg, 46, and actress Lynn Kuebler, 26, formerly of Chicago, flew to Las Vegas, Nev., yesterday and were married. Schulberg's first marriage, lasting 22 years, ended in divorce last year.

Tommy Manville, irrepressible heir to an asbestos fortune, was the principal of the marriage story.

Elinor Troy, who came here three months ago to enter picture work, boarded a chartered plane for New York after, she said, "Tommy insisted by telephone that I drop everything and fly east."

The 23-year-old former bubble dancer, who once punched Fighter Jack Doyle in a night club, said she would marry Manville upon her arrival. She is a brunette.

In New York, Manville denied he planned to marry.

"I just want someone to do the town with me," he explained the actress' plane trip, which he said was costing him $3,000.

"She's gorgeous, I love her and she's terrific."

But of marriage:

"No, of course not. Four times is enough, isn't it?"

Miss Troy meanwhile, awakened on an airliner at 2 a. m., in

Church to Hold Youth Service

At First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf street, a service will be held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, which is open to all young people of Kingston and vicinity. The service will be conducted entirely by young people of various churches. Short talks will be given on "Our Duty to God and Our Country."

Following the service there will be a social hour with light refreshments served by committees formed of young people from several churches.

This is the first get-together of the group since last spring and it is hoped that all the churches will send their young people to this service.

This group began last April when the young people of St. James Church invited other groups to attend a get-acquainted service held on Sunday, April 23. The response far exceeded expectations and it was felt that there was a need for a united youth group in Kingston.

On May 21 another meeting was held at Church of the Redeemer and suggestions made that a tentative committee composed of a representative from each group be appointed to plan further activities. Since that time the committee has been meeting with Miss Lenora M. Drals as adult adviser and a number of young people of churches of Kingston have served, discussing procedure and making plans for activities.

An outdoor service was held at Forsyth Park on June 18 with young people taking charge. On July 30, this group had charge of the worship at the union service held at Clinton Avenue Church, sponsored by the Ministerial Association. Tentative plans have been made for another union service for youth early in December, at which time the "United Christian Youth Movement" will be discussed.

Delaware Section Hears Testimony In Damages Case

A claim of damages arising out of the taking by New York city of the Bruce Gillette property, located partly in Ulster and in Sullivan counties, was heard before Delaware Section 8 Commission on Thursday. Clarence A. Hoombeek appeared for the claimant, Vincent G. Connelly appeared for the city of New York.

This is a large parcel of land on the northern side of route 55 and comprises 66.718 acres and one of the chief features of the taking by the city for water works purposes is the fact that the owner maintained a large pond of some five acres which was created by damming up a brook.

Mr. Gillette was the first witness to testify, and he said, over objection on the part of the city, that he had bought the property for the purpose of developing it as a recreational center. He testified on cross-examination, over objection of claimant's counsel, that he bought the property in 1923 and at that time the Patrons' works taking as Parcel 1342, was two parts of the farm and that he paid $6,000 for the entire tract. He said that he had sold the property within six months and subsequently reacquired it at foreclosure, resold it and again reacquired it on foreclosure. It developed that he had never lived on the property and used it for investment and speculative purposes.

The land has been rented for $25 a year for pasture and the residences rented for $12 and $20 per month.

In 1936 he sold a part of the property which he had bought for $6,000 to Frank Patruno for $5,000. Mr. Gillette said he had withheld development of the property because of the fact that the city of New York was going to condemn the valley.

During the past three years he said he had piped water into two tenant buildings. He also installed electric lights and renovated two buildings despite the fact that he knew the city was coming in to take property.

One witness for the claimant valued the property at $21,350. This was arrived at by dividing the land into 43 lots, on each of which he placed a separate value. By adding these values together a value of $11,300 was arrived at for the lots. The lake was valued at $2,000 and four acres of woodland at $100. Eight acres of tillable land was valued at $600 and six acres of pasture at $240. A parcel of woodland including about twenty-eight acres was valued at $560 and the spring on the place at $1,300. All merchantable timber was excluded from the valuation. The small red house was valued at $2,500, the cottage at $782.44 with a depreciation of $195.61 to give a net value of $586.83. The lot he valued at $434.84. No depreciation.

On the yellow house Mr. Banta placed a value of $2,180 less depreciation of $436.17 for a net of $1,743.83. The toilet on this property he valued at $34.84 and allowed a depreciation of $6.46 to net the value $28.38. The barn he valued at $2,500, the cottage at $1,513.51 and depreciation he placed at $302.62 giving a net value of $1,210.89.

The witness Dunlop valued the property at $21,210 and William Boyle valued it at $21,140. One witness, Rampe testified there was $635 worth of saleable timber on the place including pine and 30,000 feet of hemlock and some 480 cords of wood valued at $960. Mr. Rampe said the reproduction cost of the land was $2,707 which he depreciated 15 per cent, making a net value of $2,301.

The City of New York called Mr. Yates who valued the parcel at $5,500. The land he said was valued at $75 an acre and testified that without the lake there the land would be good only for pasture. He said he enhanced the value of a portion of the acreages $50 an acre. The red building with the store front now being used as a residence he said increased the value of the property $700 and the old barn $300. The yellow residence he valued at $500 and the camp building at $200.

The witness Royce for the city valued the parcel at $5,401. The witnesses for the city based their values upon the present and past uses to which the property had been put and the witnesses for the claimant placed a value upon the premises according to the present use and also the use to which the property might be put.

Women of County Aid Red Cross in Work for War Refugees

Clothing Is Made By Church Groups On Sewing Project

Several Machines Supplied for Making of Dresses; Sweaters and Caps Knitted at Home.

Somewhere soon in beleaguered lands abroad anxious hands will reach out to receive the humble offerings of another world... and with the gifts will come a gleam of hope and perhaps some faith that their troubled world will right itself.

These thousands of eager hands will be those of mothers and their frightened children now on a trail which led them away from the normal community life on a flight of uncertain ending.

Fathers called to arms at the outset of the new conflict, can be of no help to their plight and mothers are left almost helpless through the exigency of constantly finding refuge away from the danger zones.

These are the refugees of the ruthless and chaotic game of war and the greatest problem in this awry side of civilization, is to reach them in time to stem, even in a small measure, some of the suffering which comes of disrupted homelife.

Intensified Effort

Here in America and other nations of the world, where the hands and hearts of men and women are not bound to the purpose of war, an intensified effort is under way to help in the greatest possible measure, alleviate the suffering of these homeless thousands.

Chief among the agencies carrying on the work of aiding the wartime homeless and needy peoples is the American Red Cross and the units in Kingston and Ulster county are trying now to make the most of their part in this big job.

A sewing project has been set up in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium and other units are at work in the rural districts of the county. Many hundreds of yards of material are available for those who offer their service in knitting and the Red Cross is supplying as much goods as the budget will allow for the making of modest garments for the refugee children.

Workers for the various sewing projects are furnished generally through the co-operation of various jous church groups and the women of different organizations have set aside certain days of each week to aid in making the garments.

It is the hope of the Red Cross officials that large shares of the clothing now being made in the various communities of the nation, will be shipped abroad and received by the needy children just before Christmas. Dresses and other clothing made locally are bundled and shipped to New York for later re-shipment, and it is the aim of the women to make as many as the time and material will allow.

Done in Homes

Most of the knitting is done by the women in their own homes. They obtain the yarn from the project center in the auditorium building and return later with a finished sweater, muffler or small cap known as a "beanie."

Four or five foot-powered sewing machines and two electrically driven machines are made available by the Red Cross for making the dresses and other garments and supplies of yarn are kept on hand for those who call and take a hand in the work.

The dresses are made mostly of percale. They are of simple, neat pattern and the goods are machine-cut prior to the sewing at the Fuller Shirt Factory.

Temporary storage shelves have been set up in the project room at the auditorium and when the dresses, sweaters, caps and other clothing are finished they are stored there pending shipment. Various sizes are made by the women on the local project and the material is of varying color, but the garment designs are standard.

Many pairs of socks and stockings for children are made by the women on the knitting project and it is expected that several more women will volunteer their services to aid in the knitting within the next few weeks. Mufflers and other items of clothing for boys are also made.

As many as 15 women of the city already have started work on the knitting project and the yarn is being furnished to others in the rural areas. Other groups of from six to 15 women work in shifts each morning and afternoon of the week on the garment-making project.

Working Overtime

Some of the women now lending a hand in this work kept the knitting needles and machines working overtime to supply clothing for men, women and children abroad during the last great war.

One of the workers recalls that the headquarters for the project then was on an upper floor of a building on Broadway near Thomas street. In those days the women worked day and night and the project became intensified when the United States joined the Allies. As many as 25 women worked then at a single time.

All of the materials for the project are purchased locally and used in accordance to regulations of the Red Cross.

The local work has been under way for three weeks and is enlarged gradually under direction of local leaders proceeding effectively now under regular schedule. All of the various pieces of clothing made are inspected carefully before they are wrapped for shipment.

The project, as set up in this city, is repeated hundreds of times in many other communities of the nation, and it is expected, the work will be substantially effective as a whole in helping to clothe the needy on the other side of the Atlantic, as the war clouds, already darkened, threaten a hopeless blackout of peace.

The members of Delaware Section 8 Commission are Edward Beecher, R. T. Michelson and Howard Easton.

KEEP YOUR RED CROSS READY

THIS striking painting of a Red Cross nurse keeping the symbol of mercy flying is the keynote of the 1939 appeal for membership in the American Red Cross. Faced with the need for strengthening daily Red Cross services in 3,700 Chapters, and with its chartered obligation to aid in some measure in meeting the distress of the men, women and children refugees in war-torn countries across the sea, the Red Cross asks every man and woman in the

Men's Club to Hold Harvest Festival

The First Presbyterian Men's Club is completing plans for a Harvest Festival to be held in the Ramsey Memorial Hall, Friday evening, October 27, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. Because of the proximity of Halloween, the decorations, refreshments and program will closely follow the customs of that ghostly holiday when the witches and goblins are rulers supreme.

All attending are requested to come in costume so they may participate in the grand march which will open the evening's gaiety. A young lady ventriloquist is being brought to the city expressly for the affair, and it is promised that her marionette companion will have some titillating tales of prominent members of the church and community. Three old-timers from Shokan will be on hand to furnish music for square-dances and their special adaptations are said to have been the cause for many a quivering heartbeat of belle and swain of by-gone days.

The Ladies' Service Guild will serve light refreshments, assisted by the young people of the Christadelphian Society, who also are responsible for decorating the hall.

Fastest Growing City

Houston, Texas, lays claim to the title of the South's fastest-growing community as publishers of a new city directory listed a population of 421,617, a gain of 38,665 since 1936. Births in Houston averaged 19.39 a thousand population during the last year and deaths 11.58 a thousand.

Those Seeking Jobs Asked to Enroll

Women and girls capable of filling positions as domestic employees were urged today to register immediately with the New York State Employment Service.

The domestic field is one of the few fields in the state today in which there is a definite shortage of workers, according to Kenneth A. Simpson, manager of the Kingston office of the service at 243 Fair street.

Any capable woman who is neat, energetic and dependable, he said, may be almost certain of securing domestic employment in her home community or in a nearby village or city.

Domestic employment offers particularly good possibilities," he explained, "not only for experienced women, but for any capable girl who is without experience as an employee but who is willing to be trained in the particular house-keeping methods of an employer."

"The demand is primarily for so-called 'sleep-in' workers who are willing to reside at the homes of their employers. Many calls are also received, however, for day workers and women workers who will work by the hour."

Mr. Simpson explained that the State Employment Service is a public service, operated without charge of any kind, to help employers fill vacancies and to place qualified job-seekers in suitable employment as rapidly as possible.

If you fail to register by 10 o'clock tonight you will lose your vote.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Saved—By a Whisker

New York—Pre-Christmas good will led Magistrate Joseph De Andrea to spare Robert Evans, 54, who has long white hair and a white beard, from a jail sentence.

Magistrate De Andrea said he freed Evans, accused of panhandling, because he looked like Santa Claus and thought it a shame for him to spend the Yuletide in jail.

Postal Parting

Elizabeth City, N. C.—A native of North Carolina, now living in New York, apparently has the idea that the Tar Heel state is in the mail order divorce business. A letter to Clerk of Court N. Elton Aydtlett asked that the writer, a former resident here, be sent a divorce from his wife by return mail.

Burned Up

Denver—For two nights running police have been called to West Third avenue and Santa Fe Drive to break a slingshot artist who is firing windows.

Each time police were peppered with rocks but found no culprit.

Riding in Luck

Mount Pleasant, Ia.—Robert Wilson is certain Lady Luck was clinging to a spare tire of his automobile when it reached a grade crossing just ahead of a freight train.

The 18-year-old Iowa Wesleyan College student didn't see the train in time to stop, so he swerved the car in the same direction the train was traveling.

The train bumped the car several times before both stopped. Wilson was unhurt. His car had a broken front wheel and several dents in the rear, where the heavy steel of the locomotive had poked it.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 21, 1939.

KEPT FAITH WITH CITIZENS

Mayor C. J. Heiselman is one mayor who has kept political faith with the residents of Kingston. Two years ago he made certain promises to the voters of the city, and a glance at the records show that these promises have been kept.

Any disinterested citizen who reads the records of municipal affairs in Kingston realizes that irrespective of party affiliations the Heiselman administration has kept the faith.

Good government has given the city efficient municipal service in all departments. The tax rate has been kept below $40 by the cooperation of every employee of the city, and the head of every department. Waste has been eliminated and service given for every dollar of the taxpayer's money expended.

Promises made in a political campaign are seldom kept but the Heiselman administration has proven an exception to the general rule. What the Heiselman administration has promised and what it has performed is an open record; a record that anyone can scan.

During six of the toughest years in the city's history the credit of the city has been maintained, and city bonds are sold at the lowest interest rate in the city's history. That is a sure indication of what the leading bond houses of the country think of Kingston's financial credit.

When hundreds of men were thrown out of private employment by the depression it was necessary to find work for them to do. Kingston's record during the past six years is one that reflects credit on the Heiselman administration for it has sponsored only projects that are of lasting value to the city.

New sewers have been built; new water lines laid; streets have been improved under the program sponsored by the city. The Municipal Stadium, which is a credit to the city, was built, and a much needed addition to the city laboratory is now under construction.

It was under the Heiselman administration that Broadway was adequately lighted at night as well as the uptown and downtown business sections. Today Kingston has one of the finest street lighting systems on its main thoroughfare and business sections of any city its size in the state.

All of these improvements have been made without the necessity of raising the tax rate. City assessments also have been reduced.

The only question for the voters to decide on November 7 is whether they want a continuation of efficient administration of city affairs; of lower taxes and assessments. If they do there is no question but that Mayor Heiselman will be returned to office by the largest majority ever given him.

AN AUDITORY DENTURE

Human senses seem to be getting strangely interchangeable. Deaf mutes hear with their fingers, and now a couple of Omaha inventors have found a way for the deaf to hear with their mouths. It is done with a denture. In plain English, the users of this device will hear with their false teeth.

A tiny microphone, complete with storage batteries and two contacts which touch the jawbone, catches sound vibrations and, by means of a miniature diaphragm, transmits them to the ears through the bony structure of the mouth. "To prevent earthquake sounds while chewing," says a description, "the wearer may flip a tiny switch with his tongue."

If anything went wrong with that switch, the wearer would have a terrible time while eating peanuts or popcorn.

MORE JOBS, MORE WORKERS

Employment in New York city during September was above the 1929 average, according to a statistical report published by the local Works Projects Administrator. The number of unemployed persons was at its lowest point since October, 1937. Yet, because of the growth of the available supply of labor in the last ten years, the index of joblessness in September was above the 1929 figure.

There were more people at work, but at the same time more people needing work.

"It is estimated," says the chief statistician for the federal relief agency in New York, "that employment will have to rise approximately 15 to 20 per cent above 1929 levels before unemployment is reduced to the 1929 average."

It is a little like the experience of Alice in Looking Glass Land. She sped over the ground at an incredible pace, dragged by the Red Queen, only to find when they paused that they were just where they had been when they began to run. The Queen explained to the puzzled Alice that it was necessary to run that fast just to hold your place and that they'd have to run much faster to get to a different place. Maybe there's a moral that applies to present industrial situation.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

COD-LIVER OIL GOOD BODY BUILDER

I have spoken before of a boys' preparatory school where perhaps 10 of every 100 boys took cod-liver oil after each meal. The cod-liver oil seemed to give strength to ward off colds of nose, throat, and chest. These boys stated that they had been taking cod-liver oil during the cold months as long as they could remember. Their mothers told them that if they took cod-liver oil they would "grow big and strong." This was before the discovery of vitamins and that cod-liver oil strengthened the body and ward off ailments because of the vitamins A and D which it contains.

Experiments on rats showed that if placed on a good or complete diet except that the diet did not contain vitamin A, growth stopped, weight was lost, and eye disease developed. By adding vitamin A to the diet, there was an increase in growth and the eye disease disappeared.

Fortunately vitamin A is found in other substances than cod-liver oil—vegetable oils, root and green vegetables, and in husks of corn and grain, milk, eggs, and butter.

What about vitamin D, the other vitamin in cod-liver oil?

It is this vitamin that is so necessary to the growth of bone. When I graduated in medicine rickets (bent bones) due to lack of lime, was a common sight on the street and in outdoor dispensaries. Today rickets is rare, due to the knowledge that vitamin D builds bone. While certain plants can be put under sun lamps and give more vitamin D and likewise cows give more vitamin D by use of sun lamps, the main source is still cod-liver oil. There are, of course, various food stuffs—bread, milk and others—containing vitamin D. Also vitamin D tablets can be obtained at the drug stores. There is thus no reason why vitamin D cannot be obtained when necessary. It is unfortunate that vitamin D is not found in sufficient quantities in the everyday foods most of which contain the other vitamins—A, B, C, E, and others.

While adults do not need cod-liver oil to the same extent as children, it is a valuable help in ailments which cause loss of weight because it has so much food or fuel value. A tablespoonful of cod-liver oil contains 360 calories which is about one-quarter of the daily calories necessary for a woman and one-fifth for a man doing light work.

"Slow Down" Is Just as Much an Impairment of Property as Destruction of Needed Tools
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 21.—There's a war going on in the United States right now, but hardly anybody in Congress, with the exception of a few Michigan Congressmen, seems to be concerned about it.

The federal statutes provide that no group of individuals may act concertedly to restrain the commerce of the nation. Even the right of labor organization to strike does not include the right to impede or impair productive processes.

The appearance of the "slow down" as the successor to the "sit down" is a new development in labor-management warfare. The Wagner Labor Relations Act was supposed to prevent labor strike by insisting on collective bargaining. But the Chrysler Corporation, victim of the new form of sabotage, has agreed to collective bargaining and the National Labor Relations Board has held an election which was won by the C. I. O.

Now, as a contract is being negotiated, coercion is applied in the form of a "slow down." Is the "slow down" a lawful weapon? Does it differ from the "sit down" which now has been denounced by federal and state court decisions so that it may be proceeded against through judicial channels?

The interstate commerce laws of the United States are specific. They forbid any two or more individuals acting in concert to interrupt or impede the flow of commerce. Plainly all the legal reasoning of the last three or four years on the part of the administration here has been along the line of a claim that strikes and labor wars affect the free flow of commerce. There is no doubt that a "slow down" affects the free flow of commerce just as much as does a labor dispute. The right to quit work altogether has been upheld as lawful, but interference with or impairment of the property of an employer has not been held valid.

A "slow down" is just as much an impairment of property as a destruction of needed tools. For, in the auto business, an assembly line cannot operate efficiently unless all concur in the schedules set. For any group of men to attempt to influence others to withhold from an assembly line the work that must be performed is to restrain trade and commerce as plainly as if the shipments of the completed product were held up at the end of the assembly line.

In many respects, the letter which has just been published from K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation, to the distributors and dealers of the company, who at this critical moment in their business year are awaiting the 1940 models, is a remarkable document. Mr. Keller says in part:

"From August 23rd through October 5th we had 32 separate discussions with various C. I. O. officials, seeking to get production up to normal, but they failed to do anything effective about it."

"After the labor board elections on September 27th, the slow-downs got worse and more widespread. We could not mistake the fact that we were confronted with an organized campaign on the part of the C. I. O. union to curtail production by a definite amount approximating 25 per cent."

"On the evening of October 2nd, a union officer telephoned to the office of the factory manager at one of the plants and announced that the next morning in the motor division production would be slowed down 25 per cent. Promptly at the hour he named, output fell off almost exactly as he had predicted."

Strong-arm methods have been described in the world as the wrong way to settle disputes between nations. The conference table and the processes of reason are urged as a substitute. There is no international force, unfortunately, which can insure obedience from those who insist on physical coercion, but in America, the statutes governing interstate commerce can be enforced by the attorney general of the United States, who, incidentally, comes from Michigan and had an experience with "sit down" strikes before the federal courts declared them unlawful.

Today the Department of Justice again has a conspicuous opportunity to begin criminal and civil proceedings against all those who engage in conspiracies to violate the interstate commerce laws of the nation.

World Traveler Sees

Tibet as Gold Rush Site

Far-off Tibet, where the lowest altitude is higher than Pike's peak, will be the scene of the world's next major gold rush, in the opinion of Harrison Forman, 35-year-old world traveler.

"There is a great deal of gold in Tibet," according to the young explorer.

Then he added:

"I have seen tons of it on the roofs of Tibetan monasteries and there is more in the ground and streams. However, it's of no value to anyone because it's impossible at present to get it to the outside world."

"The country has no railroads and no highways. There isn't a wheel in all of Tibet and the metal is too heavy to be hauled on the backs of animals."

Forman believed the development of an airplane motor powerful enough to fly heavy freight will be the ultimate solution.

GUNS CAN'T SILENCE WEDDING BELLS—Thoughts of war didn't intrude on the wedding joy of Pamela Digby and Randolph Churchill who were married Oct. 4 at St. John's church, Smith Square, London, just a month after war between the Allies and Germany was declared. The bridegroom is the son of Winston Churchill, England's first lord of the admiralty.

The Creeping Man

by Frances Shelley Woot

YESTERDAY: Tuck has a lot to think about the day after the party. Higgins is a fascinating man, she learns from Charlotte Jean. He calls her a "rocky" and expresses disapproval of Mrs. Murchison. Tuck drops her necklace down the register, and Michael fails to find it in the pipe.

Chapter 13

"THAT'S damn funny," Michael conceded, when he had reached the final bend of the pipe. "They must have skidded all along here, and gone down into the jacket." He went over to the tool box, took out a flashlight and opened the jacket of the furnace, to peer about inside, at considerable discomfort. But finally he emerged.

"They're not there, Tuck. Absolutely not a sign."

"Then it must be the wrong pipe, Michael, and they're in some other one. Because most certainly dropped them into a pipe, and they're not in the furnace so they must still be in a pipe."

"It's the right pipe," Michael said, but he looked again to make sure.

"Michael, it's nearly two o'clock," Tuck said suddenly. "I know. I have to go. But it's damn queer, honey, if you really did drop it into the pipe. Was there anything fuzzy on it that a rough fellow might catch?"

"Of course not. Fuzzy, indeed, Michael! It was my carved corals that my grandmother left me."

"Well, then," Michael said as he dashed up the stairs, "it's another mystery. The Mystery of the Missing Necklace. I'll solve it for you when I come home."

"Don't be so cocky, Michael Forrester," Tuck called after him. "Maybe it isn't the first missing necklace around here. Maybe all necklaces are doomed to disappear in this house for some strange reason. Maybe the house is haunted, Michael."

"What are you talking about?" he stopped and surveyed her with a frown.

"Diamonds," she said darkly.

It was something after five o'clock that afternoon when Michael stopped his register in front of the imposing facade of the Medical Building. He was out of the car with a leap and a bound, up the steps and through the big door in another second. The object of his interest at that particular moment was a stout gentleman in a white coat, and Michael found him rubbing vigorously at the glass doors of a cabinet in the upper hall.

He looked up quickly at Michael's approach. His red face beamed, and his eyes shone as he took in the identity of his visitor.

"Well, if it ain't Mr. Forrester himself!" he said warmly. "It's been many a day since you was around here, sir."

Michael shook hands. "I've been very busy," he said seriously.

"Indeed, and have you now?"

The stout gentleman frowned.

"Let me see, wasn't you law, Mr. Forrester? You wasn't one of these here medicals, was you?"

"Right the first time, Bill."

"I thought so. I ought to remember, but it's been a good many years. Five or so, wasn't it? The time does fly, it does fly."

"How's the family, Bill? Young Jim, and Katie?"

Mr. Jameson smiled more expansively. "Now fancy you remembering their names! They're fine. Fine it is, Mr. Forrester, and that's true. I'm proud of them."

Katie's got a good job with the housekeeper at the residences, and she's doing her work real good. And Jim's the junior accountant now down at Smith and Robertson's. He gets real good pay, and he's gettin' along splendid. I always told him as how he's got you to thank for that job."

"Me? Me to thank? You're having a pipe dream, Bill. Your furniture polish must have gone to your head."

Family History

JAMESON put his hand up mechanically to his bald head, took it down and looked at it, as he answered, "No, I mean it. Don't you remember that bicycle you gave Jim when you first came to University, and he was just a strip of a kid hangin' around my heels all the time? Well, he went right out and got him a job with that there bike, a job as messenger boy with Smith and Robertson's. And he worked his way up slow and gradual, and now he's got this swell job with them. If you'd never given him that there bike, it'd never have come to his mind to get himself a messenger's job."

Michael grinned. "I suppose if I'd given him a monkey he'd have gone into the organ grinding business, Bill."

"No," Bill said seriously. "I don't really believe as how he would. He always had his heart set . . . he looked up and caught Michael's grin. "Oh, go on with you, Mr. Forrester. You always was one to catch people." He put his head on one side. "Didn't I hear you was married, Mr. Forrester?"

"You probably did, Bill. I am."

"Well, that ought to make you settle down," Bill pondered. He grinned. "Any time you think you might like that there bike back, Mr. Forrester," he said soberly,

"you just let me know. It's in real good shape, except for a tire my Jim would be glad to fix."

"I really couldn't use it," Michael said. "I'll tell Jim to give it to some kid if he doesn't want it. It's a kid's bike."

"Yep, that's what I was thinkin' of," Jameson said.

Michael took out his cigarette case. "I think you'd better have a cigarette, Bill. Calm down."

Bill accepted the proffered cigarette. "Any time you want to start passing out the cigars I'll be around right handy," he grinned again.

He lit his own cigarette and put the case back.

They smoked for a moment in silence. Jameson turned suddenly to Michael. "Was there something you was wanting, Mr. Forrester? Something I can do for you?"

"No thanks, Bill. Just dropped in on my way home to say hello. We're living out on the campus now, you know."

"Oh, are you? No. I didn't know. One of them houses on the Horse-shoe?"

"That's it," Michael looked at Bill's necktie. "The Murchison house?"

Jameson frowned. "I knew he was gone away. Good riddance, says I. It'd be a good thing for the University if he'd never come back, but of course there is no such luck."

"You don't like him, Bill?"

Jameson considered, eyeing the cabinet beside him full of gruesome relics and strange models.

"He's not so bad if you just meet him around the halls. Not so bad at all. Kind of short, always has his nose up in the air, but there's a good many worse around here. But it's when he gets inside the lab that he turns into a regular devil." He shook his head. "We had awful fracas around here last summer," he concluded.

'Shrieks And Yells'

"I HEARD something about it," Michael murmured. He inspected the glowing end of his cigarette critically. "Something about vivisection, wasn't it? Somebody started a fuss?"

"And good reason they had too," Jameson took out a tremendous white handkerchief and mopped his face. "The shrieks and yells comin' out from the lab was somethin' fierce, Mr. Forrester. And mostly always it was in the dead of night, and people was scared to go past the Building. I come up here myself once just to listen, and it was awful, the row goin' on inside."

"What was going on, Bill?"

Jameson shook his head. "Nobody ever saw the inside. Mr. Forrester. The door was locked and there was somethin' hung over the keyhole. I make no bones about it—I tried to see inside. I never heard the like of it since I come here twenty years ago. It was fierce."

"But they put a stop to it, you say. Who did? What did they put a stop to? How did they go about it?"

"Well, I guess it was the Council it was took up with, or the President maybe. He didn't know nothing about it, of course. He doesn't spend his nights snooping and spying around the Medical Building. People complained of the row, and a delegation finally come to Murchison. I was right here in the hall when they came. They knocked on the door—it was pretty early one morning—and Murchison opened it, all dressed in his long white coat with rubber gloves on his hands."

"Was he in the middle of one of his experiments?" Michael asked as Bill paused with a grimace of distaste.

"No. At least, not in the middle of one of the fierce ones where he tortured poor innocent dumb beasts. Not so dumb at that, if you could hear them yowling." Jameson paused, then went on. "Of course, he was always in the middle of some experiment. Fair daff he was, about experiments I don't know what about, although I know he made new medicines sometimes. He gave me a bottle of stuff years ago that cured that pain in my shoulder like nothin', and half a dozen doctors couldn't do nothin' with it before that."

"He stroked his shoulder tenderly. 'You couldn't get me to take nothin' he makes now, though,' he said grimly."

"I suppose he was pretty sore at the delegation?"

Jameson came back to the subject. "Yes, you could see that. They told him what was the matter, that it was gettin' too thick, besides bein' against all the laws of human decency and so on, and he just stood there gettin' whiter and whiter and never said a word. And then he asked them what proof they had that he was torturing dumb animals, or torturing anything."

"And then?"

"Well, of course they told him about the noises in the middle of the night, and that they'd been to the night and found out about the standing order he had there for big healthy dogs and cats to be delivered to him in the evening, and he was caught. But he didn't give in to the end. He made them show him the order, all signed with his own hand, and then he kind of slumped. But all he said was, 'Very well, gentlemen, you win.' And he went in and shut the door. You could see he was just boiling mad but what could he do?"

Peach Tree Borer
One good knot of ethylene dichloride and the peach tree borer borer no more, says the Country Home Magazine. This new killing agent is a colorless liquid with an odor like chloroform. An emulsion is made by mixing nine parts of the chemical with one part of potash fishoil soap and 50 parts of water. The recommended dose, for a three-year-old tree, is one-half pint (one cent's worth) of this mixture, poured around the base of the tree, on bark and soil alike. Weaker emulsions are used on younger trees, and stronger ones on older trees. September and October are the best months in which to apply the poison.

We like to travel the highways of life, but it is on the quiet byways that much of life's charm is found.

Friend—If you have spotted the man who stole your car, why don't you get it back?

Man—I'm waiting for him to put on a set of new tires.

A filling station gets this mention for being original. Slightly on the thrifty side, the operator was observed standing by a light switch at night, turning on the station lights when a car approaches, and turning them off when none was in sight. No, for goodness sake.

Hubby was leaving on a business trip, and had decided to take three umbrellas with him.

Wife—Why three umbrellas, my dear?

Hubby—Well, one to leave in the station, one to be left on the train, and the third in case it rains.

It is all right for a woman to hold on to her youth, but not while he is at the steering wheel.

Featherstone—I had great luck this morning. I found $10 in my winter umbrella with that.

Rockford—No! Why, I thought you were married.

Brevity is the soul of wit. Accident reports must be brief and the company takes pains to impress this fact upon rookie motormen. So the first accident reports of new trolley skippers sometimes turn out to be amusing. One classic among the street car men, for example, is the following effort of a new motorman to be brief.

"Running along smoothly. Saw parked automobile. Thought it was shadow. Hit shadow. It was parked automobile."

Inquisitive Patient—Tell me, Doctor, just what good is the big toe?

Chiropodist—Well, it makes a dandy stopper for the bathtub.

Jay drivers should be jail birds.

The Bishop was absorbed in a book while seated in a Pullman car. The porter scrutinized him very carefully, and said:

Porter—Scuse me, Senator, anything Ah kin do for you?

Bishop—No.

The porter returned again soon and asked:

Porter—Shall Ah open de window, Governor?

Bishop—No, thanks.

A third excursion he ventured:

Porter—Scuse me, Colonel, can't Ah brush you off?

Bishop (looking up)—Listen, porter, I'm not a senator or a governor, or a colonel, nothing but a poor, common Episcopal Bishop.

Porter—Yassah, Bishop, but Ah

just done knowed you was one of dem face cards.

With a grinding of brakes the officer pulled up his car and shouted to a little boy playing in a field:

Officer—I say, sonny, have you seen an airplane come down anywhere near here?

Boy (trying to hide his slingshot)—No, sir. I've only been shooting at a bottle.

This is getting to be a great country for hillbills. A friend of ours returned recently from a motor trip to the West Coast.

"How was the scenery?" we inquired.

"It ran mostly to toothpaste and cigarettes," was the reply.

Honking automobile horns in motor jams assail the ears but moves no cars.

Reggy—I see some doctor has invented a machine for looking into the brain.

Peggy—That shouldn't interest you at all.

Bennett Is Held
On Second Charge
 Charles "Chokey" Bennett, 38, of 46 Chambers street, who was arrested a few days ago on a bench warrant charging burglary, third degree, but was released on bail is again in the county jail. He was arrested again on Friday on a bench warrant at the request of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray. The warrant charges burglary, third degree, and grows out of a burglary at the Moose Club on Cedar street.
 Bennett was sentenced to Clinton State Prison at Dannemora on an abandonment charge several years ago. There were at least two burglary indictments pending against him. These charges were held in abeyance until a short time ago when he was arrested on a bench warrant issued in one of the burglary charges. He provided bail and was released from custody only to be again picked up Friday under another charge of burglary. Both charges were investigated by the same grand jury and the same grand jury filed the two bills.

 and Rubber Company in England, who was returning to take up new duties in Akron, Ohio, told of seeing the submarine that sank the Heronspool.
 The U-boat had remained on the scene and flashed its blinker lights to attract the attention of rescuers, he said. When the President Harding approached the submarine disappeared.
 Officers at first thought the men in the Heronspool's lifeboats were French and addressed them in that language.
 One of the bobbing seamen finally bellowed "we're British—are you going to take us aboard?" Clarke, a native of Orlando, Fla., said the two lifeboats were scuttled after the rescue.
 Other passengers told of seeing a 100 foot wave almost swamp the President Harding during the hurricane.
 Prof. Louis Karpinski of the University of Michigan circulated a petition among the passengers protesting against the treatment of American refugees in Europe.

 then submerged after remaining alongside a short time.
 The Independence Hall reached the spot where the Yorkshire sank about 10 p. m. The survivors, all of whom were in lifeboats, said the vessel went down in about nine minutes.
 One of those rescued, an unidentified Englishman, died aboard the Independence Hall.
 Already crowded with its own passengers, the Independence Hall found its facilities taxed by the 300 survivors. Many had to sleep on floors.
 Some survivors were barefoot when they came ashore. Many were wrapped in blankets.
 Among them was a four-year-old baby, whose mother was reported drowned.
 A few of the more hardy passengers bravely sang "God Save the King" to the thin notes of a violin as the rescue ship docked.
 Among the crew of the Independence Hall were three young men employed by the Minneapolis Star-Journal, who said they had "run in the biggest story of our lives." The three, who gave their names as Darbel Brady, Joe Marcel and Bob Bickhart, said they were working their way around the world.

French Reported
Now Placing Order
In U. S. for Trucks

It was learned yesterday that the first direct war orders of any size to be placed with an American industrial concern has been given by the French government and involves $3,500,000 worth of trucks. The order is for 2,000 2½-ton trucks, to be delivered early in the first quarter of 1940.
 The name of the company receiving the order was not disclosed, but the French Economic Service stated that an order, size not disclosed, had been placed with the Studebaker Corp. The company with which the 2,000 truck order has been placed was advised, it is understood, that if deliveries are made on schedule additional orders will be forthcoming. In addition to the order already placed, the French government is said to be trying to buy 2,500 trucks from a leading independent manufacturer.
 The Hewitt Rubber Corp. has completed an order from the British government for 800,000 feet of fire hose and has received an additional order for 500,000 feet. The Goodrich Co. also has received two orders, one for 400,000 feet and another for 245,000 feet.

With shut-down continuing in Chrysler plant, as negotiations with the CIO-UAW made no progress, auto production this week fell below the previous week, standing at 74,114 units against 75,860 last week.

 Youngstown steel rate will rise next week .05 per cent to 25.90, a 10-year high. Pittsburgh rate is at 92 per cent of capacity.

Allegheny Ludlum Steel, with operations at capacity, is expected to report third quarter net of over $300,000.
 Utilities were the only issue to show average gains yesterday as transactions on the Stock Exchange slowed down to 790,000 shares. The industrials showed a drop in the Dow-Jones averages of 36 point, to 153.00; rails declined .13 point, to $34.58, while the utility gain was but .04, to 25.89.
 With wheat and cotton closing lower, commodities generally showed declines. Sugar futures were the exception, closing on the up side.

Class I railroads in August had aggregate net income of $10,053,000, compared with net deficit of $1,151,000 in August last year.
 Bond market was dull, only feature being strength in certain foreign issues.
 Foreign markets were firm.
 Dividend declarations yesterday included: Kroger Grocery, regular quarterly $10 cents and an extra of 25 cents. Belding Hem-inway, pays 20 cents against previous payments of 17½ cents. Mid-Continent Petroleum declared 35 cents.
 The du Pont Co. reports net profit of $22,926,709 for the quarter ended September 30, which compares with net of $12,350,712 in the third quarter of 1938.

 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. to organize a civic choral group. The city has been canvassed as to people to form the nucleus of the group and these people have contacted personally or through the mails.
 It was felt after the meeting last evening that the civic choral group will fill a definite need in the community and will bridge the gap between high school graduation and the age reached to join the established musical organizations.

Although Kingston has high standards of music programs for entertainment which are always attended well, this choral group, organized purely as a recreational outlet, will be another progressive step forward in providing recreation for all in the true meaning of the word.
 All interested in singing for the enjoyment it offers are invited to attend the meeting Wednesday evening. The department of recreation has many interesting plans to offer the group and feels that its enthusiasm and the enthusiasm of the Civic Music Committee will spread through the community.

Three Persons Are

 dow. A party of three outside, a man and two women, asked to be admitted.
 Grasso dressed and opened his place for the party, serving them at the bar. After a round or so of drinks, the woman, asked if they might use the lavatory and went upstairs.
 "While they were up there I heard them walking around in other rooms besides the bathroom," Grasso told Sergeant Cunningham, "but I didn't become suspicious at the time."
 Grasso recognized one of the women as Ellen Ryan, from whose mother he had purchased the grill and property more than two years ago.
 Sergeant Cunningham, after learning this, called in John Metzger and Lynn Baker, of the B. C. I. department of the state police, and they took up the case.

The two women, Ellen Ryan and Goldie Lane, were picked up for questioning and admitted being in Grasso's place with a man they said was Arthur Elting, early last Tuesday morning.

According to the troopers, the women said they left the bar, went upstairs to the bathroom and then to Grasso's bedroom, where they found the "strong box" in his dresser. It was tossed out of the window, and the two returned to the bar.

After another drink, they left with Elting, they said, picked up the box, and he drove to a diner on the 9-W bypass, where he gave them $20 each and kept the rest of the contents of the box.

Yesterday the women knew nothing about the box, they told the troopers, although Ellen Ryan said she had tried to find out in order to "return the papers to Patsy."

At the home of Judge John Watzka in East Kingston the women were formally placed under arrest by the state police on the grand larceny charges. They waived examination and were committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Up until this time, which was about 6 o'clock in the evening, Elting had not been placed under arrest, but the Kingston police department was notified and asked to pick him up on the warrant held by the state troopers.

Last night at 8:45 o'clock Sergeant James V. Simpson arrested Elting and turned him over to the troopers for arraignment. He waived examination also and was sent to jail for grand jury action.

FASHIONS and HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

Your Screen Test

1. What actress (shown in the picture), featured in the forthcoming Bette Davis-Errol Flynn film, "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex," was born in Tokyo and only recently has taken out her first naturalization papers?

2. What American singer-song lady, referred to because of her Broadway performance in "The Streets of Paris" as "the Brazilian bombshell," recently was signed for pictures by Darryl Zanuck?

3. If you had to introduce the following by their professional names, what names would you use: (a) Mrs. Ronald Colman; (b) Marchioness de la Falaise; (c) Mrs. Adrien; (d) Mrs. Menjou?

4. Is it right or wrong that the stars of the following movies recently produced or planned played the same roles on the stage: (a) Frank Craven as the narrator in "Our Town"; (b) Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story"; (c) Vera Zorina in "On Your Toes"; (d) Raymond Massey in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois"; (e) William Holden in "Golden Boy"?

5. What star of the forthcoming film, "Ninotchka," plays comedy for the first time in many years?

Count 20 points for each question correctly answered. A score of 60 is good, 80 is excellent, and 90 or above is colossal.

Helps for Housewives

Equal portions of chopped cooked ham and white or cottage cheese, blended with savory seasonings (green peppers, onions, pimientos, sweet pickles) and pressed into a loaf dish makes a delicious salad. Cut in thin slices and arrange on crisp lettuce. Pass salad dressing. Thin slices of this mixture also make a fine filling for sandwiches.

Here is a grand find for the tea table: Stuff seeded dates with small bits of pineapple, roll the dates in sugar and place them on 1½ inch squares of pastry dough. Fold the pastry over the dates and pinch it in place. Prick with a fork. Bake 8 minutes in a moderate oven.

Jellied ham salad with horseradish sauce is a grand combination for a buffet supper or luncheon. To make the sauce, mix 2 tablespoons grated horseradish, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika and 2/3 cup whipped cream. This will serve six.

A tart lemon filling is delicious between two baked layers of yellow, white or spice cake. Here's a good recipe: Mix 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind, a speck of salt and 1½ cups confectioner's sugar. Beat until creamy.

Tea leaves moistened with vinegar will remove stains from flower vases. If the stains are hard to reach, fill the vase with a tea leaf-vinegar solution and soak it over night. Rinse out, wash in warm soapy water.

Vary French dressing with fruit juices. For instance, a mixture of lime, lemon and orange, or grapefruit, lemon and pineapple, mixed with French dressing, gives a delightful new flavor to any fruit salad combination.

Chocolate biscuits are something very different. Make biscuit dough the regular way, then spread each biscuit generously with grated sweet chocolate. Fold half over and bake as usual.

Always wipe the inside of a fowl thoroughly before stuffing it, otherwise the stuffing is likely to be soggy.

1940 Lingerie Smooths The Way For Corsets

This is one of the new slips designed to fit the season's little waistline. It has an elasticized satin midriff and a smoothly moulded lace-trimmed brassiere top.

Culotte Petticoats, Like Slips, Hug The Waistline

By ADELAIDE KERR
Fashion Editor

The corset's 1940 comeback has left a big mark on winter lingerie. All the new underpinning for winter frocks has been designed to smooth and enhance the new silhouette's small waist.

Since slips still top that list, they have had first consideration. Some have smoothly fitting brassiere tops to give the high rounded bustline, and elasticized satin center sections which cover the top of the new corset and mould the midriff as smoothly as though it had been ironed. Other slips are cut with smooth fitting inset center sections. None of them is boned, but they are all designed to confirm fashion's foremost winter decree: "Small waistline."

More lingerie news appears in sheer culotte petticoats, which eliminate panties from the wardrobe and one layer of fabric from the waistline. They are nearly as long as a slip, made of very sheer crepe and often as lace-trimmed as grandmother's petticoats. They're generally worn with a very sheer lace accented shirt, like the old-fashioned pre-war variety, which is tucked inside the culotte petticoat. That combination came to life as something to wear under the laced corsets, which some women objected to wearing next their flesh. Most women, however, now prefer to set the shirt-culotte combination over their corsets.

The black corset, which caused such a storm of controversy, has had a further effect on winter lingerie styles, designers say, in influencing the making of sheer black lingerie to wear with it.

The new nightdresses, which many smart women are already buying as Christmas gifts, emphasize the hand-span waist, too. Some of them are designed with inset midriff sections to mould the figure and full skirts breaking in a graceful sweep below them. Half of them have a little jacket to match, or a long sheer coat of the same color. Scores of others have long sleeves that give them an old-fashioned look reminiscent of grandmother's day.

Here you see the new culotte petticoat worn over a hiplength shirt. Both are made of the sheerest pink crepe, to avoid bulk and are trimmed liberally with lace.

There's lots of lace about and it has been used in new ways this year. Sometimes a wide inset band of it serves to effect that famous little waist; again it is inset in bodices or used in brief sleeves to cap shoulders.

Very sheer weaves, crepes and satins are used for all this lingerie froth. Pale pinks and blues are more talked about than the tea-rose, which held top place on the lingerie color card so long.

For the young things there are a lot of nightdresses of flower-sprigged challis and crepe, and scores of pajamas. Flower-sprigged crepe, challis, flannel and polka dotted cottons are all used to make the pajamas which are generally quite wide and topped by a loose jacket.

House coats of sheer wool, flannel and velvet are going to be worn again this year for those lazy lounging hours. So are braided and metal-stitched sheer wool robes of a more feminized design.

Common Courtesy

When Facing a Receptionist

Approach the receptionist in a business office in a friendly, but business-like manner.

Don't try to bluff your way past her, but don't try to hightail her, either.

If you have legitimate business in the office, she'll help you gladly. Tell her who you are, whom you want to see and—if she asks—what it's all about. You don't have to go into details, but be specific, reasonably brief and to the point.

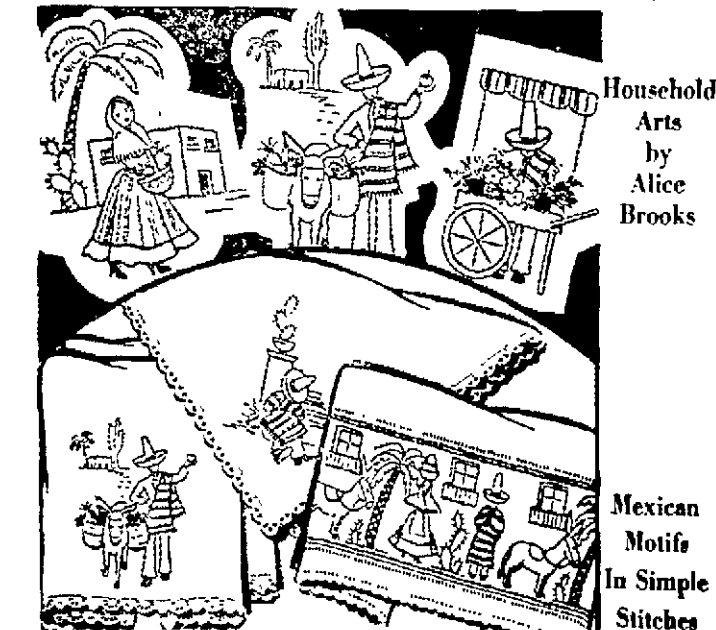

If she tells you Mr. So-and-So isn't in, you don't have to take no for an answer. But don't get huffy about it all. Ask her when he will be in, get her opinion of what would be the best time for you to call again.

Whatever you do don't go in for a lot of wisecracking—unless you're awfully sure of your ground. A good solid sense of humor helps, but don't overdo it.

Final hint. If she makes an appointment for you, be on time for it.

A Man May Not Try For Beauty, But He Can Treat His Head Right

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

Here are some "beauty" hints that lots of wives think their husbands need—and that lot of single men might profit by, too.

Get a haircut every ten days or two weeks. Don't wait for your wife (or your best friend) to tell you you need one. In between haircuts give yourself a shampoo—unless you get your shampoos in the barber shop, too. Don't soak and soap your head every time you get under the shower.

If your scalp is oily, use a little astringent tonic for a while; if it's dry, try a stimulating tonic, and cut down on your shampoos.

Don't neglect brushing. Brush your hair once a day—the first thing in the morning, or the last thing at night.

When you're shaving, don't neglect your Adam's apple and the region round about, either. Stubble on the neck—this is an economy tip as well as a beauty hint—wears out collars and neck bands.

Most women like to have a man use an after-shaving lotion—if you're wondering about that; one thing at night.

Another economic idea: You'll keep the toes of your socks intact much longer if you wear them half a size too large, and always keep your toenails short.

Toe and fingernails may be cut with heavy manicure scissors or clippers—if you're sensitive about using a nail file as many men seem to be. If that big toenail seems awfully tough, try reading your evening paper while sitting on the edge of the bathtub or on the bathroom stool. Then you can soak your feet for 15 or 20 minutes at the same time. Your toenails will snip off easily after a soaking.

Note: Don't use scissors or clippers that are the least bit rusted. Every time you finish using them, rub a little petroleum jelly on them to prevent rusting. Don't push back your cuticle with anything too sharp. Use an orange stick.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Frank Carpenter was re-elected president of the Ulster County W.C.T.U. at the annual convention which was in session at Highland Methodist Church Wednesday.

Mrs. Gene Kirk has returned to her home here after spending a week in Albemarle, N. D.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gerow, of New Paltz, called on Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wager, Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nabor visited Mr. and Mrs. Bush in Poughkeepsie, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sisti were visited by friends from Newburgh, Sunday.

Mrs. Myron Coons attended the fall rally of the Modena Home Bureau unit which was held at Mrs. Lester Arnold's home, Tuesday afternoon.

Pancake Spread Spiced blueberry jam makes a delicious spread for hot, buttered pancakes. Currant and raspberry jams are also good.

Cups of Nuts There are about 45 Brazil nuts, with shell on, to a pound. That will produce about 2 cupfuls of shaved or coarsely ground nutmeat.

IF THROAT IS SORE

IF A COLD has given you a miserable sore throat, here's how to relieve the suffering.

DO THIS NOW—Melt a small lump of VapoRub on your tongue and feel the comforting medication slowly trickle down your throat—bathing the irritated membranes—bringing blessed relief where you want it, when you want it.

SO THIS MORNING—Rub throat, chest with VapoRub. Its long-continued poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation, eases coughing, invites refreshing sleep.

California Mystery House
The Wind star House of California, built by the widow of the famous film star, is about four miles from San Jose and two miles from Campbell in the Santa Clara valley. Mrs. Winchester, a spiritualist, believed that she had received a message from the spirit world that she would not die as long as the sound of hammers was heard in the house. As a result, it is a strange composite of architecture with steps leading nowhere, strangely placed balconies and some rooms as large as others that are not. It is estimated that at least a million dollars was spent on the structure, parts of which have not been explored.

Griffiths Arrive

New York, Oct. 19.—(Special)—Mrs. Mary A. Griffith and Mrs. Gwendolyn Gail Griffith, both of Kerhonkson, arrived in New York tonight on the relief ship Acadia, which was sent to Europe by the government to bring back mariners stranded in the British Isles. The ship plies normally along the Atlantic coast.

The Griffiths said they experienced terrible storms for two days, during which the ship was tossed about like a cork. The wind rose at one time, they learned later, to gale velocity of 120 miles an hour. That there were no serious injuries among the 520 passengers was credited to the fact that they heeded the captain's warning that they keep to their rooms during the storm.

The passengers complained bitterly of the fact that they were forced to remain in Southampton two and one-half days and in Cobh four days because of a disgruntled crew.

Approximately 50,000 soldiers lost their lives in France during the 1917-1918 World War, while accidental deaths from all causes last year totalled approximately 100,000.

NOBODY asked us yet, more's the pity, but if somebody did ask us what one of our best selling items was, we'd be bound in honesty to answer—"her shoes."

... honest to pete!

We mention it because lately we've had a run on the items that need to make the old general store hum.

This morning a man came in for a lantern. We set our lanterns out on the counter to be selected from; then wrapped one up for him, also a couple of lamp chimneys, some old stove wicks, blades of twine, a coal scuttle, and a few stove pipe lengths and elbows.

Then the bean pot arrived. We had phoned to Albany and finally located the real old-fashioned kind you set in the kitchen range oven to bake all day. One of our customers wanted one for a late fall picnic.

It looked so good, so homely in a nice way, you know, so squat and so ample — we had a hunch we'd better put in a regular order. (YOU can get YOUR bean pot any time now.)

What's more, in the basement some of us were unwrapping gardeners—the selfsame kind that stood in your grandmother's parlor for winter ferns and house plants.

On a shelf above we stood a row of the new pottery cookie jars. They're a bit prettier than the strictly old-fashioned kind, for some of these are gay with Oriental and Mexican designs.

That's a sample of our Winter stock. Does it maintain our reputation as a modern store, or does it make us look like something that stood at the crossroads in the Nineties?

The matter of the horseshoes will answer that. We stock a full line of horseshoes in all sizes, not to the memory of Old Dobbin, but to meet the demand of today. As a matter of fact, on that farm which has the distinction of being the only one of major size within the Kingston city limits, they are raising horses to fill advance orders!

It's out of the picture of this column to delve into Vocational Guidance — but doesn't the Return of the Horse point to the practicality of some of our boys growing up to be blacksmiths? The village smithy, we hear, is gone. That is, he's gone out over the countryside in his motorized trailer. Like the old-time preacher, he goes where duty calls—with his forge mounted on the trailer!

When you have the right things to "do" with, you'll whistle as you work making your place snug. A bit of our very wonderful Rutland stove lining will fix those broken bricks. Just mix with water and apply. You may build a fire immediately. It doesn't need to set.

Our patching plaster will quickly repair interiors before the new wall paper or paint goes on. Our liquid roof coating will take care of minor holes up there, and the plastic roof cement is great for filling in around the chimney.

We've a new kind of weather stripping for door bottoms which absolutely stops drafts; window ventilators to settle that problem; cocoa mats in three sizes to offset mud and slush; mail boxes and baskets to put up new after the house is painted, and window glass of single or double thickness, which we'll cut to any size.

These days we're prepared to provide most anything. One person asks for a school lunch box. We've got an fitted out with a

Dr. Chasey's Work Praised by Group

A marked tribute was given to the popularity and effectiveness of the work of Dr. Joseph W. Chasey, who this year completes his term as superintendent of the Kingston district of the Methodist Church, when more than 200 delegates attending the 22nd session of the district conference in the Margaretville Methodist Church October 13, acted unanimously to endorse the action of the district stewards, seeking the continuance of Dr. Chasey in his present office. By legislation of the recent uniting conference limiting the term to six years, his reappointment has been made impossible.

The conference, which was led in opening devotions by the Rev. W. B. Peckham, of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church, Kingston, was addressed by Dr. C. C. Cole, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Poughkeepsie. Professor Edwin Lewis of Drows Theological Seminary, and the Rev. W. S. Shaker, Methodist pastor at Phoenicia.

The cause of retired supply preachers was presented by the Rev. Arthur Magee of Oak Hill. Local notes were given by Mrs. Ralph Sanford of Arona and Mrs. Grace Persons of Cairo.

Guests of the conference from outside the district included Dr. Allan MacRossie of New York, Dr. G. A. MacDonald, superintendent of Newburgh district, and the Rev. E. G. Wahl of Goshen.

The Rev. D. B. Cordes, pastor of the Margaretville Church, introduced Mr. Deput, who welcomed the conference of Rev. Thomas Falslow of Saugerties responded. Mrs. Ruth D. Glenn and the Rev. Arthur Magee were recommended for local elders; the Rev. Paul Allan was recommended for admission to the annual conference and ordination as an elder; and other preachers had their licenses renewed.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A mild revival of the war-buying urge came into the stock market today and steel, motor trucks, aircrafts and specialties were lifted fractions to more than a point.

While extreme gains were shaded in some cases at the close, many favorites emerged at the day's best levels with a handful in new high territory for the year.

Dealing, slow at the start, picked up a little momentum later with several large blocks of low-priced issues changing hands at about where they finished yesterday. Transfers for the two hours approximated 600,000 shares, or more than double last Saturday's total.

An assortment of recently faint-hearted traders, brokers and speculators were drawn back into the market by the morning's headlines which indicated the battling European powers intended to push the conflict "to a finish."

Touching new highs for 1939 were Studebaker, White Motors and Mack truck. Popular most of the time were Yellow Truck, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, U. S. Rubber, Great Northern, Westinghouse, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Philip Morris, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck and Anaconda.

Mighty Pillar Honors Poilus

Monument Marks Stand of Taxicab Army of Gen. Joffre on Marne.

MONDEMENT, FRANCE.—Towering over the valley of the Marne, a granite slab of 100 feet in height has been erected to the memory of Marshal Joseph Joffre and the "taxicab army" who flung back the German hordes advancing on Paris 25 years ago.

Monuments to other armies have been created on the former battlefields—the United States memorial is visible for many miles on the heights above Chateau Thierry, the Canadian stands at Vimy Ridge, while the Menin gate near Ypres commemorates Britain's "old contemptibles" who kept the pass on the frontier—but not until now has the battle which decided the World war been fittingly honored.

One early September evening in 1918 a long line of decrepit taxicabs—typical Paris "crooks" of pre-war days—rattled their way from the Invalides along the bumpy country roads which wind through the Marne valley toward the German frontier.

700 Taxis Used.

Each cab groined under the weight of six or seven men, dressed in the baggy blue and red striped trousers of the Paris garrison. The taxis puffed at the limit of their speed, 700 of them all told, bearing the 4,000-odd men who were to help to swing the balance in the first clash of the opposing French and German forces. They were rushing to the battlefield in response to Joffre's frantic appeal: "Send every available man by any possible means."

It was Gen. Joseph Gallieni, commanding the Paris region, who had the idea of mobilizing the Paris "cochers" to transport reinforcements. Train transport was already blocked with truckloads of troops. He summoned the taxi "rivers, in great secrecy, to the Invalides, gave them their orders and they set off with their unusual fares by night to meet the Kaiser's legions.

Wounded Brought Back.
The feet of taxis moved this mobile army from village to village to bring help to the sorely pressed French forces. Whenever a taxi was available, it was rushed back to Paris with wounded and loaded on more soldiers to be brought to the front to help stem the tide.

The battle of the Marne began September 6 and seemed certain to end in an easy break through to the helpless capital. A tremendous weight of man power came winding down the roads from Germany, until along the ridges and in the neighboring valleys Von Kluck had 900,000 men against Joffre's hastily gathered regulars and reserves.

For four days the French took the full shock of the deadly German drive while Allied and other reinforcements, including the Paris garrison, were rushed up until on September 10 the attack was broken. Paris was saved and the first flush of the German march stemmed.
